The world has been gripped by the controversy surrounding the death of George Floyd, an African American man who was subjected to apathetic police brutality fuelled by racial prejudice. People all over the world have raised their voices in solidarity for the same. However, before crying out for justice in a foreign country, we should address the discrimination that is prevalent in our own country, or for that matter, in our own institute. In 2013, Insight had published an article titled “We Don’t Need No Segregation”. Based on a survey conducted among freshmen on issues such as region, language, caste, religion, and gender, this article represents the perception of the students about such issues, using very lucid illustrations. For most of the part, the conclusion is left to the readers.
